KOREAN FLAG - TAEGUKKI: The Korean Flag symbolizes much of the thought, philosophy and mysticism of the Orient. The symbol and sometimes the flag itself, is called the Taeguk. It is said that the Taeguk

flag was first flown in August of 1882, the 19th year of the reign of King Kojong of the Choson Kingdom. A treaty was made at this time between Korea and Japan at Chemulpio to end the hostilities resulting from Hideyoshi's invasion of Korea 1592. To affect this treaty, Kim Ok-kyun and Pak Yong-hyo went to Japan as special envoys and feeling the necessity of a national flag originated the Taeguk while on the ship to Japan. In 1883 it was formally adopted as the national flag of Korea. The three aspects of a nation are the land, the people and the government. These are symbolized on the Taeguk; the white ground represents the land, the circle represents the people, and the four sets of bars represent the government. Depicted on the flag is a circle divided equally and in perfect balance. The upper (red) section represents the yang and the lower (blue) section the um, an ancient symbol of the universe. These two opposites express the dualism of the cosmos fire and water, day and night, dark and light, construction and destruction, masculine and feminine, active and passive, heat and cold, plus and minus and so on. The central thought in the Taeguk indicates that while there is a constant movement within the sphere of infinity, there are also balance and harmony. Three bars at each corner also carry the ideas of opposition and balance. The three unbroken lines represent the earth. At the lower left-hand corner of the flag are two lines with a broken line between. This symbolizes fire. The opposite is the symbol of water.
